

Edition One, back icon, acceptance standard for the face

Artwork authority

The icon scan supplied with the digitizer pack is the artwork authority for the back icon. Generated, mirrored, or beautified versions of the face never replace it. This sheet adds the acceptance standard the production file is judged by.

Convention

Scope

The stitch file preserves everything the scan shows. The painted asymmetry and the panel's condition are both source. Nothing is corrected, smoothed, or beautified.

Where the stitch budget forces choices, the four pinned features on page 2 hold fidelity first.

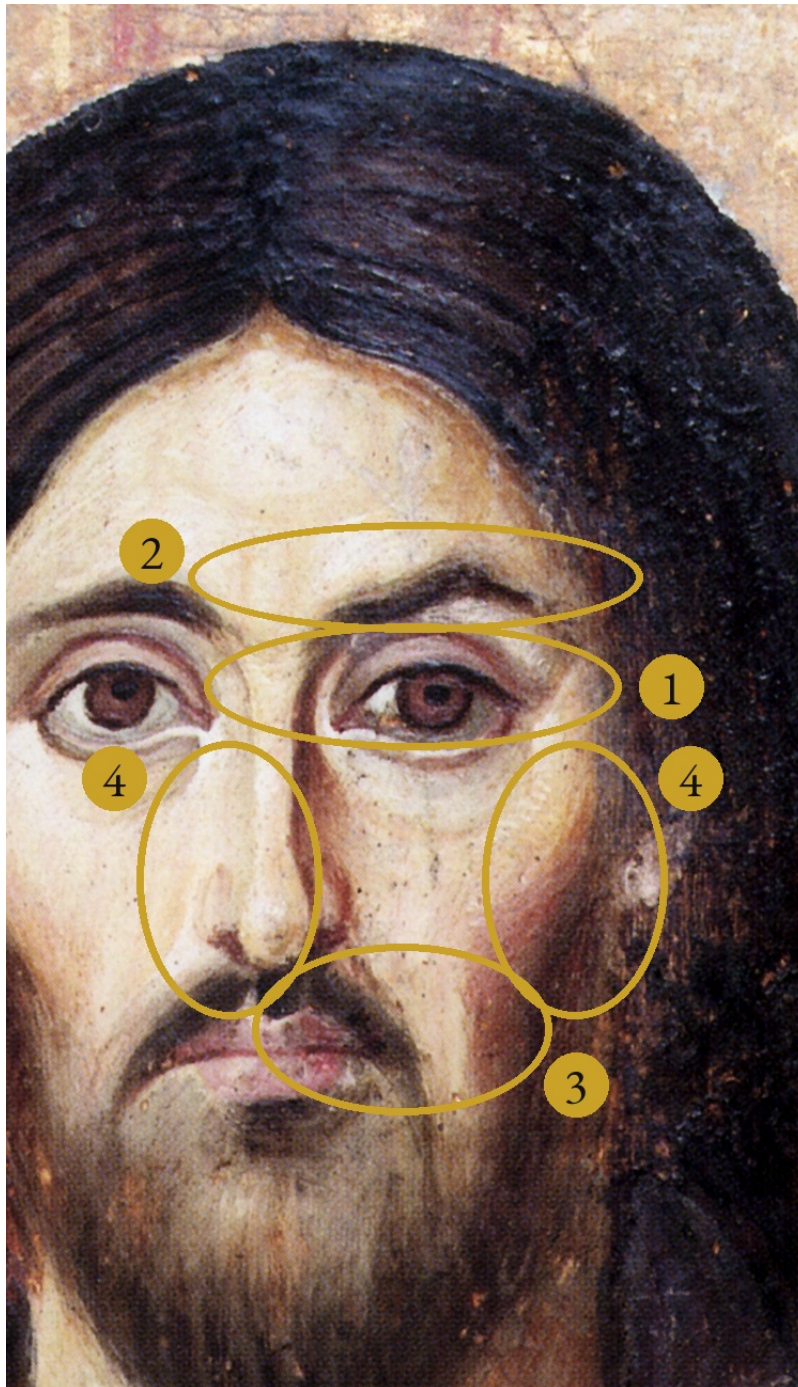

Milestone 1 zone

The milestone 1 sew-out covers the face, the hair, and the halo edge, at the size these elements hold within the 46 cm icon on the S/M garment, on the specified cloth.

The mirror test

The sew-out is photographed straight on. The photograph is split along the facial midline and each half is mirrored into a complete face. The two resulting faces must read as two different faces, matching the two reference composites on page 3.

If the two faces converge, the sew-out fails. A failed pin fails the sew-out.

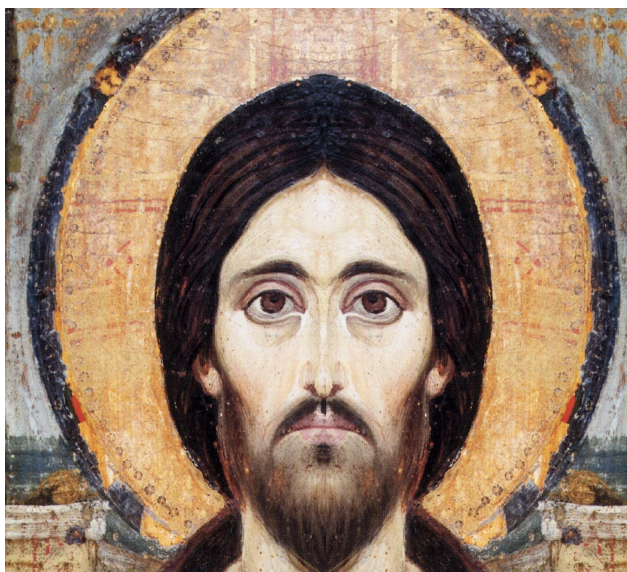

Pin 1, the eyes. The left eye is larger and more open than the right. The two eyes do not match in size or set, and the file keeps that difference.

Pin 2, the brows. The right brow arches higher and sits harder than the left. The difference in arc survives in thread.

Pin 3, the mouth and the mustache. The mustache limbs are unequal and the mouth axis tilts down toward the right. The tilt and the unequal limbs survive.

Pin 4, the cheeks. The left cheek is fuller and lighter, the right cheek hollower and more shadowed. The modeling is not evened.

Judging references

Right doubled, the judge side

The milestone 1 sew-out, photographed and mirrored the same way, is judged against these two faces. The full reference files travel with this sheet as Pantocrator_Blessing_Side.jpg and Pantocrator_Judge_Side.jpg.
